One Hundred and Sixty-six

Pte. Jacob Shelby Brant

Pte. Jacob Shelby Brant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Brant, R.R. 6, Hagersville, bore an illustrious name and could trace his ancestry back to the noted Indian leader after whom Brant County was named, and who was his great-great-grandfather. Pte. Brant, like his famous ancestor, was a warrior, but a modern one, fighting in the cause of world freedom, and when he was 19 years old he enlisted in March, 1943, in the Army. In the next year he proceeded overseas and went into action on the Continent. Wounded in August, he recovered and rejoined his regiment, the Lincoln and Welland, only to be killed in Belgium on September 11, 1944. Born on the Mississauga of the Credit Reservation, he attended New Credit Public School, Ohsweken Continuation School and Hagersville High School.

Pte. Elwood Martin Burnham

Pte. Elwood Martin Burnham was killed in action on March 19, 1945, in Germany. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burnham, Ohsweken, he was educated at the Six Nations day schools, the Mohawk Institute, and the Brantford Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. Elwood enlisted in the United States Army on August 28, 1944, and went overseas the following January. His family has an outstanding record of service, his sister, Rosalie, being a member of the W.D. of the R.C.A.F., his brother, Walter, with the United States Army Medical Corps, and his brother, John, an LAC in the R.C.A.F. He was a very clever artist and pianist and while at the Collegiate Institute specialized in painting the school posters. He was a member of St. Peter's Anglican Church. While in the United States Army Infantry he received medals for proficiency in rifle-shooting and grenade work. Besides his family already mentioned he is mourned by his widow, Mrs. Hazel Burnham.

Sgt. Leslie James Capton

Sgt. Leslie James Capton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie W. Capton, Ohsweken, was one of Brant County's outstanding young farmers before the war. In 1939 and 1940 he captured the Junior Plowman's Championship for the County. He was also high man in the International Plowing Match at Barrie in 1938 in the inter-county competition. His death, while serving in the R.C.A.F. after air operations over Germany on September 1, 1942, was a severe loss to this community. Only 19 years of age, he had already established himself as one of the outstanding youths of the farming centre in which he lived. On the day he was reported missing, his sister, Delma, enlisted in the W.D. of the R.C.A.F. Born on the Six Nations Reserve on November 19, 1920, he was educated at the Six Nations day schools. He was a popular boy and had a wide circle of friends.

Pte. Walter H. Lewis

Pte. Walter H. Lewis lost his life almost in the last days of the Second Great War when the Canadians were advancing through Belgium late in March, in 1945. Pte. Lewis was well known, not only on the Reserve, but in the city, as his brother, Mr. Norman Lewis resides on Elgin Street. He had been educated at the Mohawk Institute. Both of his parents predeceased

Cpl. Harold (Jamie) Jamieson

When Cpl. Harold Jamieson sacrificed his life on April 2, 1945, it was not in vain, because his platoon comrades were able to capture the strong German position of Emmerich and Hoch Elton, just over the Rhine River and thus helped to break the enemy foothold freeing the north-east of Holland. So fierce was the defensive, so gallant and courageous the offensive, that Cpl. Jamieson's platoon commander, Lieut. R. Gauthier, wrote to his mother, Mrs. M. Jamieson, 19 Sarah St.: "If I had a platoon of men as brave as your son, we could win the war by ourselves. You may well be proud of him". Mrs. Jamieson is proud of him, but his death left a void in her heart all the larger because only two years before she lost her husband. Cpl. Jamieson was 26 years of age when he gave his life. Until 1943, when he enlisted in Toronto with the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, he had spent all his years in Brantford. He studied at Major Ballachey School and afterwards earned his living as a transport driver. He was a devout member of the Latter Day Saints Church. His quiet life here was a far cry to the fierce combat duty he engaged in at Caen, France, and in Belgium, Holland and Germany. He now lies temporarily at Beek, Holland.

Pte. George Leonard Hill

Pte. George Leonard Hill, son of Mr. John W. Hill and the late Mrs. Hill, Cainsville, was killed in France on August 22, 1944. Born on March 3, 1911, on the Six Nations Reserve, Pte. Hill was a member of the Seneca Tribe. He had attended school on the Reserve, and later was employed at the Canada Glue Company. Two other members of his family, Pte. Elias Hill and Pte. John Hill served in the Canadian Army during the Second Great War. He had many friends in the community in which he lived and his death was deeply regretted by them. Besides his father and two brothers, he is also survived by two sisters, Catherine and Lena.

Pte. Wilfred Obediah

Pte. Wilfred Obediah, the son of Mrs. Ada Obediah, Otterville, was born on the Six Nations Reservation at Smoothtown, near Ohsweken, and was educated at the Mohawk Institute and Otterville Public School. He was an enthusiastic ball player and a good athlete. As a soldier in the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division he fought and died in the battle of Caen, Normandy, on July 8, 1944.

He had enlisted in the Army in November, 1943, and had been overseas only two months at the time of his death.

Cpl. Welby Lloyd Patterson, M.M.

Cpl. Welby Lloyd Patterson, M.M., son of Mr. Thomas Patterson, Ohsweken, lost his life on April 14, 1945, in Friesoythe, Germany, serving with the R.C.A.M.C., after a distinguished and gallant career as a soldier. He had been awarded the Military Medal for heroism and the citation in connection with it read: "On the night of September 9, 1944, an infantry company was among other sub-units of a Canadian infantry brigade which had successfully set a small bridgehead over the canal at Moerbrugge, Belgium. The enemy counter-attacked in great strength, and, acting on his own initiative, Cpl. Patterson worked his way through the intense mortar and machine gun fire to a position behind two stumps, where, for three hours, he fired with such coolness and devastating accuracy that the enemy was unable to effectively counter-attack the main position. The courage, initiative and complete disregard for personal safety shown by Cpl. Patterson was undoubtedly responsible for the defeat of repeated enemy thrusts at his unit's position". Born in 1922 on the Six Nations Reservation, Welby was educated at the Mohawk Institute. He is believed to have been the first from the Reserve to win the Military Medal in the Second Great War.

Pte. Roy Henry Williams

Not as a subject, but as an ally, Pte. Roy Henry Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Williams, R.R. 1, Ohsweken, donned the King's uniform when he enlisted with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry on November 14, 1941, following the example set by his father who, in the First Great War, joined the 125th Battalion, here. His loyalty was to cost Pte. Williams his life, and he fell in action on August 12, 1944, between Falaise and Caen, France. His particular job was driving a Bren gun carrier and his unit commander, Capt. D. Mackay, paid high tribute to his courage and gallantry during that fierce campaign, when the casualties among the Canadians were tragically heavy. Born, July 1, 1920, Pte. Williams went to school on the Six Nations Indian Reserve and attended the Anglican Church there. He was active in the Sunday School and took part in all the church entertainments, his pleasing voice making him a happy addition to the group. He followed this special interest throughout his life and made a hobby of collecting songs. He enjoyed the abundant outdoor life the Reserve offered and, like most of its boys, was proficient in hunting and fishing. He had another hobby, rather an unusual one for a member of the sterner sex, he liked to cook and on one occasion, one of his cakes was served at a church supper. After his school-days, he worked on the home farm up to a short time before his enlistment, when he was with the Cromar Construction Company, Ltd. His service training took place at Newmarket and Camp Borden, and in April, 1942, he was moved to England.

L/Sgt. Franklyn Martin had the distinction of being the first resident of the Oakland Community to enlist with the Canadian Army in the Second Great War and was the first and only fatal casualty of that community and the first from the Six Nations Indian Reservation. He heeded the call to service in October, 1939, when he enlisted with the Dufferin and Haldimand Rifles of Canada (Reserve) and went active in April, 1940, when he was transferred to the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry. He was in Canada only a few months afterwards, sailing for England with his unit in July. Then began the long and arduous service of training which had its climax in the battle of Dieppe, France, August 19, 1942, when the pattern for future invasion landings was fashioned by those 2nd Division Canadians. L/Sgt. Martin was reported missing after the raid and was officially presumed dead in July, 1945. Born on the Reserve on April 23, 1908, he was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Martin. Attending Public School in Oakland and Continuation School in Scotland, L/Sgt. Martin completed his education at the Robinson Business College, Waterford. For some time he was employed as a clerk in the Indian Office at Brantford, until he decided to relinquish his post in favor of building steel barns with Bill Davis, Oakland. He had been successful in the business field, but in his new job he was equally proficient and with his employer travelled all around the countryside erecting buildings. On February 24, 1934, he was married to Miss Jean Gaetz, Waterford. In Oakland they were members of the United Church. As a hobby he collected stamps. He was also interested in playing hockey and badminton.

Pfc. Randall Arthur Powless

Pfc. Randall Arthur Powless, eldest son of Mr. Lincoln Powless, R.R. 6, Hagersville, one of Canada's allies as a Six Nations Indian, responded to her need for help in the Second Great War before he was old enough to legally enter the armed forces. He enlisted in the R.C.A.F., and was discharged when it was learned he was too young. Then, at the age of 18, he joined the United States Army and on February 15, 1944, began his training as a paratrooper. The period of instruction and his active combat duty was less than a year and on January 3, 1945, he lost his life in Belgium. Popular among his friends, both young and old, Randall's brave young spirit is vividly remembered and his loss to his community keenly felt.
